

History Curriculum Framework

Intent:

The Futura Learning Partnership intent for history is that a high-quality history education will inspire children to have a curiosity and fascination about the local area and Britain's past and that of the wider world as well. Children will be able to think critically, weigh evidence, sift arguments, and develop perspective and judgement. The children's deep learning of history and its related information gathering skills will enable them to have an understanding of where we have come from and how this has been influenced by the wider world and different cultural heritages. This in turn will enable us to learn from the past, model the future and understand society and the child's place within it. Furthermore, it gives us a view of other cultures and their development through time. We believe that learning about historical events provides an important context for the development of pupils' key learning skills, particularly communication, working with others, problem solving and critical thinking skills and that this will be done not just through experiences in the classroom but also through the use of field work and educational visits.

Inclusion: Our curriculum is ambitious for all and strives to address inclusion and disadvantage in its intent and implementation

Aims: Underpinning the intent are:

Key substantive concepts:

1. Specific key substantive concepts enable pupils at primary level to learn:

- knowledge of the immediate topic or context
- knowledge of broad features of the period and overviews of developments
- knowledge of terms, concepts and phenomena that recur in later topics

Pupils are encouraged to make connections, deepen and develop their knowledge, each time they encounter the concepts

Chronological Understanding	A secure knowledge of the order of events necessarily underpins any attempt to explain cause and consequence or to chart the process of change and continuity.
Historical Concepts	2. Some concepts and terms (such as Calvinism or Menshivism) are highly specific to a particular period or place – and it is easy to recognise that their meaning needs to be explicitly taught. 3. Other concepts (such as Puritanism or Bolshevism) that originated in specific contexts may come to be applied more widely, so that students’ more general awareness of their meaning can obscure a lack of precision in their historical knowledge. 4. Others (such as ‘the Church’ or ‘revolution’) have a much wider application and are applied in many contexts other than history. In dealing with this category, teachers need not only to ensure that students understand their meaning, rather than simply assuming that they do because they are works in common usage; they also need to plan for learning about how that meaning changes over time and in different contexts. Pupils build up the range security and sophistication of their understanding of the concepts over time. 5. Knowledge and understanding of the wider substantive concepts are built up through the primary history curriculum. They are revisited systematically so that pupils develop rich schema and secure foundations for future learning. 6. In the primary curriculum key historical substantive concepts pupils learn about are: <ul style="list-style-type: none">• Monarchy and society• Homes and settlement• Technology (including agriculture and medicine)<ul style="list-style-type: none">• Conflict• Travel and exploration• Religion and beliefs• Culture and civilisation• Democracy and government

7. In Early Years many of the concepts may be introduced in stories and through roleplay.

Key Disciplinary concepts:

Pupils need to gain knowledge of the discipline of history; how historians produce knowledge.

Disciplinary knowledge addresses:

- 1. The kinds of questions historians ask
- 2. Methods of historical enquiry.

Our curriculum requires that pupils regularly address questions focussing on these second order concepts. Questions must be historically valid and appropriate. Questions should not be about opinion or moral judgement, for example. Pupils should have sufficient substantive knowledge before they can engage meaningfully in disciplinary practice. For example, they must have the requisite knowledge to reason and make judgements.

Cause – analysis of why events happened, or a state of affairs existed

Developing an understanding of why things happen and of why people do the things that they do is indispensable in both our personal and our collective lives: it is a precondition for making sense of experience and for acting to shape it effectively.

There are at least four cognitive activities here:

1. Identifying different factors.
2. Making explanatory links between causes and effects.
3. Assessing the relative importance of different factors.
4. Considering the relationships between causal arguments, evidence and interpretations.

Change and Continuity – analysing changes in the past, particularly the pace, type or extent of change	Pupils examine trends and turning points over time, looking at those dimensions which remain stable while others alter, and examining the varying pace, direction and extent of change. Another aspect of change and continuity is the lived experience of change: how particular developments were experienced and understood by those who lived through them.
Similarity and Difference- Analysing how homogenous or diverse past societies, regions or groups were, in terms of identity or experience.	Pupils analyse how homogeneous or diverse past societies, regions or groups were in terms of identity or experience: Eg ‘Was everyone affected by the Viking invasions in the same way?’
Significance - exploring the reasons why some events or people are deemed significant by historians or others	Considering the significance of events, people and developments in their historical context and in the present day. Significance is not the importance of impact (that is change), but exploring why some events or people are deemed significant by historians or others. This includes: considering why judgements about the significance of historical events, issues and people have changed over time; identifying the criteria and values used to attribute significance; and assessing how these have been used in past and present descriptions and explanations. Statements about significance are interpretations that may be based on contestable judgements about events, issues and people, and are often related to value systems of the period in which the interpretation was produced.

Historical enquiry - learning about the range of sources historians use to construct knowledge, the kind of questions they ask and how they form judgements Interpretation – understanding why historians construct different accounts of events.	Recognise ways in which we find out about the past. Use artefacts, pictures, stories, online sources and databases to find out about the past. Observe or handle evidence to ask questions and find answers to questions about the past Analyse the nature and origin of sources (from KS1) <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● when was it produced? ● what sources of information were used to produce it? ● who produced it? ● where was it produced? Understand that people represent the past in different ways <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● Interpretations reflect the circumstances in which they are made, the available evidence, and the intentions of those who make them (for example writers, archaeologists, historians and film-makers). Suggest some reasons why accounts of the past are constructed in different ways <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● Was it to entertain/inform/persuade? Who was the intended audience? Understand that some historical sources may be more reliable than others, for example because of bias. Begin to give reasons why a source may or may not be reliable. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● what were the views and standpoints of the producers of the interpretation?
Historical literacy	Show competence in a range of intellectual and communication skills (oral and written) written, including the formulation of arguments which include elements of synthesis and evaluation of material. The ability to interpret contemporary sources and historical interpretation of an increasingly complex nature (vocabulary, vocabulary and context).
Historical numeracy	Numeracy (number and measurement)-solving numerical problems how it is presented in graphs, charts and tables. There are opportunities within history for students to develop their numeracy skills such as analysing population growth and economic expansion and decline. Students learn to analyse numerical data to make meaning of the past, for example to understand cause and effect, and continuity and change

Early Years Foundation Stage.

In planning and guiding what children learn, practitioners must reflect on the different rates at which children are developing and adjust their practice appropriately. The three Characteristics of Effective Teaching and Learning are playing and exploring - children investigate and experience things, and 'have a go'; active learning - children concentrate and keep on trying if they encounter difficulties, and enjoy achievements; creating and thinking critically - children have and develop their own ideas, make links between ideas, and develop strategies for doing things. In addition, the prime areas of learning (PSE, CL, PD) underpin and are an integral part of children's learning in all areas.

Birth 2 Five Range 6 statements –

- Enjoys joining in with family customs and routines.
- Talks about past and present events in their own life and in the lives of family members.
- Knows that other children do not always enjoy the same things and is sensitive to this.
- Knows about similarities and differences between themselves and others, and among families, communities, cultures, and traditions.

ELG – Understanding the World –

- Past and Present - Children at the expected level of development will: - Talk about the lives of the people around them and their roles in society; - Know some similarities and differences between things in the past and now, drawing on their experiences and what has been read in class; - Understand the past through settings, characters, and events encountered in books read in class and storytelling.

EYFS History Skills

Changes within living memory

Begin to make sense of their own life-story and family's history. Understand the ways I have changed.
Talk about the changes that have happened within my family lifetime e.g. talking to grandparents about holiday etc. Talk about the lives of the people around them and their roles in society.

Events beyond living memory

Comment on images of familiar situations in the past.

The lives of significant individuals in the past

Compare and contrast characters from stories, including figures from the past
Understand the past through settings, characters and events encountered in books read in class and storytelling.

Significant historical events, people and places in their own locality

Identify some similarities and differences between things in the past and now, drawing on their experiences and what has been read in class.

First-hand experiences and pupil knowledge offer:

History at Foundation Stage is introduced indirectly through activities that encourage children to explore, observe, think, make decisions, and discuss. This is scaffolded through skilful adult interaction. Children will have opportunities to explore a range of historical skills such as discussion, chronology, historical vocabulary, analysis, perspectives and interpretations and empathy. They experience first-hand artefacts and materials which they use to inspire learning.

The first-hand experiences and knowledge the children should be offered are:

- Welly Walks in and around the local area.
- First-hand discussions with children about their own past and that of family members. □ Sharing experiences and visits from their own lives.
- Sharing stories, pictures, music, and art from the past and looking at significant world and local people from the past that have shaped the future. □ Exploring the school environment and local area.

Actively using class timelines to gain an underpinning sense of time and chronology. (Eg Visual timetables- recounting trips with pictures in sequence)

Key Vocabulary - Today, yesterday, tomorrow, present, past, future, when I was little, remember, ago, order, sequence, old, new, then, now

Key Stage 1

Substantive Knowledge:

Historical Concepts	Chronological Understanding
Monarchy and society Homes and settlement Technology (including agriculture and medicine) Conflict Travel and Exploration Beliefs	Use common words and phrases relating to the passing of time To develop an awareness of the past, for example: labelling a timeline with words or phrases such as: past, present, older and newer. Use dates where appropriate. Know where people and events fit in a chronological framework. Identify similarities and differences between ways of life over time

Disciplinary Knowledge:

NB There is less of a focus on disciplinary knowledge in Key Stage 1 than 2, as the focus is on building pupils' substantive knowledge

Historical enquiry and interpretation	Cause	Significance	Change	Similarity and Difference
Recognise ways in which we find out about the past. Use artefacts, online sources and data to find out about the past Observe or handle evidence to ask questions and find answers to questions about the past-	Analysis of why events happened: Eg what caused the Great fire of London	To talk about who was important e.g. in a simple historical account . Understand why some historical figures are considered significant	Recount changes that have occurred in their own lives and within living memory Understand change as a result of events. Eg Changes to London Buildings after great fire.	Identify similarities and differences between ways of life in different periods

Suggested key topics:

	Term 2- Significant events	Term 4 - significant people	Term 6 -significant places

Historical Literacy

Pupils should have opportunity to communicate rich and detailed knowledge using subject specific vocabulary – this may through labels and captions

Literacy should be supported by oracy

Use language to describe passing of time- such as recently, a long time ago, lifetime, century, year, decade

Ask historical questions write answers using tier 3 historical vocabulary

Describe changes and give reasons for changes

Describe similarities and differences

Give reasons why people and events are seen as significant

Lower Key Stage 2:

Substantive Knowledge:

Historical Concepts	Chronological Understanding
Describe characteristic features of the past including ideas , beliefs, attitudes, and experiences of men, women and children: Monarchy and society <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Homes and Settlement • Peace and Conflict • Technology (including agriculture and medicine) • Beliefs • Culture and Civilisation • Transport and Exploration • Government and democracy 	Place events, artefacts and historical figures on a timeline using dates. Understand the concept of change over time Use dates and terms to describe events and periods studied- eg ancient, pre-historic, Roman, Ancient Greek Understand and use terms BCE and CE

Disciplinary Concepts

Historical enquiry and interpretation of sources	Significance	Cause	Change	Similarity and Difference
Use evidence to ask questions and find answers about the past Suggest suitable sources of evidence for historical enquiries Use more than one source of evidence to gain more knowledge	Understand why historical people, places events or sources are deemed significant.	Suggest causes of some of the main events in periods studied	Describe some of the main changes in periods studied Describe consequences that have happened as a result of events or actions Describe changes that have happened in the locality of the school throughout history.	Understand hierarchy and roles in societies studied Understand and describe differences and similarities within a period studied eg Athens and Sparta

Describe different accounts explaining why accounts may differ

KS3 assessment statement

Timescale	What	Purpose
Annual	Year 7 exam-50 mins Year 8 exam-1 hour Year 9 exam-1 hour 15 mins	Testing knowledge, understanding and skills under exam conditions. Provides a measure of progress to date.
End of unit/teaching block	Summative assessment These are end of 'unit' assessments. They comprise a set of knowledge questions e.g. define key terms, multiple choice followed by a GCSE style exam question equating to 16 marks	Students complete the assessment under 'test' conditions. At the end students are given the opportunity to 'Go Green' and ABC (Add, build, change) before submitting Following teacher marking and individual written feedback, students are given the opportunity for further ABC with the addition of 'extend' questions to complete. Teacher input in the form of correcting common misconceptions arising from the assessment. Students reflect on learning/progress
Weekly/fortnightly	Progress quizzes (approx. 2 per unit) Linked to homework/pre-learning	Progress quizzes are peer/self-marked. Feedback takes place in the lesson through questioning and teacher correcting common misconceptions
Lesson by lesson	Assessment for learning through practice questions (differentiated essential/challenge/extend)	Class discussion and teacher targeted questioning. Formative feedback

KS4 assessment:

AQA assessment structure:

Courses based on this specification should encourage students to:

- develop and extend their knowledge and understanding of specified key events, periods, and societies in local, British, and wider world history, and of the wide diversity of human experience
- engage in historical enquiry to develop as independent learners and as critical and reflective thinkers
- develop the ability to ask relevant questions about the past, to investigate issues critically and to make valid historical claims by using a range of sources in their historical context
- develop an awareness of why people, events and developments have been accorded historical significance and how and why different interpretations have been constructed about them
- organise and communicate their historical knowledge and understanding in different ways and reach substantiated conclusions.

Section A: Period studies

The assessment will enable students to demonstrate their knowledge and understanding. Students will also apply their knowledge and understanding to second order concepts such as causation, consequence, and change. Students will also evaluate interpretations.

Section B: Wider world depth studies

The assessment will enable students to demonstrate their knowledge and understanding in relation to second order historical concepts such as causation and consequence. There will be an opportunity to demonstrate their ability to create structured analytical narrative accounts of key events. They will also be able to demonstrate their ability to understand, analyse and evaluate a range of sources.

The exams will measure how students have achieved the following assessment objectives:

- AO1: demonstrate knowledge and understanding of the key features and characteristics of the period studied.
- AO2: explain and analyse historical events and periods studied using second-order historical concepts.
- AO3: analyse, evaluate, and use sources (contemporary to the period) to make substantiated judgements, in the context of historical events studied.

- AO4: analyse, evaluate, and make substantiated judgements about interpretations (including how and why interpretations may differ) in the context of historical events studied.

KS5 assessment:

OCR assessment structure:

The nature of the examination will require learners to demonstrate an understanding of the key historical terms and concepts relevant to the period studied.

The questions relating to the Period Study element will require learners to recall, select and deploy appropriate knowledge and communicate this clearly and effectively. Learners will be expected to demonstrate abilities to explain, assess, analyse, and consider the relationships between key features of the period studied in order to reach substantiated judgements. All responses will require judgements, and at the top level will be more analytical with judgments more effectively substantiated.

In the enquiry element the focus will be on the critical use of evidence in investigating and assessing historical questions, problems, and issues. Each provides a range of perspectives affecting individuals, societies and groups and will enable learners to analyse and evaluate different interpretations and representations of the past through contemporary perspectives.

The critical evaluation of sources will be central to this element with all marks awarded against A02.

The sources selected for examination will be a range of types of written sources, contemporary to the period. Learners' knowledge of the historical content will only be credited insofar as it is used to analyse and evaluate the sources in relation to the question set.

- Ivory Bangle Lady. Body discovered in York. Remains and artefacts show African descent.
- Vindolanda. The Vindolanda tablets and artefacts found at the site show several good examples of African, Arabian and Middle-Eastern soldiers having been based at the site.
- Septimus Severus, emperor of Rome. Born in modern day Libya, died in York.
- Caracalla. Son of Septimus Severus. Proclamation of accession, as co emperor, at York. Concluded a peace treaty with the Caledonians.
- Get a. Son of Septimus Severus. Co emperor with Caracalla. Murdered in 211.
- In 1953 a skeleton was discovered of a woman of African descent at Beachy Head. Isotope analysis shows it to be from 200-250

- Human remains in York discovered in the 1950s included several of African descent.
- 83 Roman Londoners remains discovered and 2 deemed to be of African descent. They lived in the 2nd century AD. ● Tombstone of Victor the Moor
- Tombstone of Barates of Palmyra, Syria
- Burgh on Sands Roman fort. Known that North African troops were stationed here. Earliest known African settlement in the British Isles or Ireland. See David Olusoga's Black and British episode 1.
- Rogatianus, centurion. Appears in War at the Edge of the World.
- Account in official histories of Septimus Severus being handed a garland whilst at Hadrian's Wall by an Ethiopian soldier. The garland was seen as a symbol of his impending death, that an Ethiopian handed him it was noted as matter of fact, not surprising.

Vikings-

- Map showing Viking trade, settlement and raids. Remember that much of the Iberian peninsular was held by Moors at the time.
- Raids often resulted in people being captured for sale as Slaves. These sales took place in established and emerging ports held by the Vikings or with whom they had a working relationship. This article notes that African slaves could have been sold in the Viking port at Dublin.

- Ibn Hawqal, an Arab geographer, described a Viking slave trade in 977 A.D. that extended across the Mediterranean from Spain to Egypt
- "Slavery was a very significant motivator in raiding.
Neil Price, Archaeologist
- For example, at a Swedish site called Sanda, researchers in the 1990s found a great hall surrounded by small houses. Some Swedish archaeologists now believe this could have been a Viking plantation with slaves as the labor force
- "What you likely have is a slave-driven production of textiles," said Price. "We can't really know who is making the cloth, but the implications are clear."
- Note: these slaves came from anywhere the Vikings raided.

- Ahmad Ibn Fadlan, an Arab lawyer and diplomat from Baghdad who encountered the men of Scandinavia in his travels, wrote that Vikings treated their female chattel as sex slaves. If a slave died, he added, "they leave him there as food for the dogs and the birds."
- Bones are yielding new clues about the massive, mysterious Viking forces that invaded England...
- One expert says symbols for "Ali" and "Allah" were unearthed in Scandinavia, though other experts remain skeptical.
- Both lines from same article. If early Islamic artefacts were in Scandinavia it is reasonable to assume some would also be in the British Isles.

- Life of St. Anskar notes slaves as a tradable commodity.
- The Fragmentary Annals note "Blue Men" being sold as slaves. Widely believed these are black Africans captured on raids.
- Kristen Wolf in Daily Life of the Vikings writes that Dublin was the primary slaving port of north west Europe. Including black African slaves.
- The same Viking leaders who attacked England also attacked France, Spain, Portugal and North Africa:

- "A more successful Viking excursion to the area came 15 years later. It was led by Hastein and Björn Ironside, sons of the legendary Viking Ragnar (some sources suggest Hastein was adopted). In AD 859, they left France's Loire to sail around the Iberian Peninsula with an expedition of 62 ships. Again, they struggled against the Asturians and, in Spain, were defeated by the Muslim army of the Umayyad Caliphate of Córdoba.

- Instead of fleeing back north, the Vikings slipped through the straits, past the Pillars of Hercules and into the Mediterranean, taking Algeciras (south Spain) by surprise, sacking the town and torching the mosque. More raids followed on the shores of North Africa, where they plundered Nekor (in modern Morocco), and attacked settlements at Orihuela (south-east Spain) and the Balearic Islands.
- After spending winter in Camargue on the mouth of the River Rhone, Hastein and Björn renewed their offensive in the Rhone Valley. They sacked Narbonne, Nîmes and Arles, pushing as far north up the river as Valence, before turning their attentions to Italy. At least part of the Viking fleet travelled along the Tuscan coast, went up the River Arno and attacked Pisa and Fiesole."
